

A system that provides precise data about the status of the product from the moment it enters the warehouse until it is shipped to the Customer.

